GREATER FARALLONES NATIONAL MARINE SANCTUARY

Greater Farallones NMS Advisory Council Establishes Coastal Sediment Transport Working Group

At its November 14th, 2016 meeting, the GFNMS Advisory Council voted to establish a working group to take into consideration climate adaptation strategies for Marin and Sonoma Counties and develop the next phase of implementing living shorelines. The group will identify the shorelines that are most at risk, and develop strategies to address those shorelines. It will be conducted through a two-part process: technical committee (government entities) and then a working group (government entries and public stakeholders). Recommendations would go to the Sanctuary and forwarded to state agencies.
